

Advanced Communications & Media was established in 2002 by several individual consultants with unparalleled experience in the Russian telecom market.

During 1996-2002 AC&M founders participated in more than 200 research programs in various segments of the telecom market. Our extensive industry expertise and unique skills allow delivering on a wide range of assignments - from field research programs to financial evaluations and M&A deals.

AC&M has already established itself as a respectable independent authority on industry-specific market research, monitoring and forecasting, appraisals, evaluations and strategic studies.

AC&M has accumulated an unprecedented database on the Russian telecom industry and has access to the vital public and non-public industry-related data. On top of that it has developed a network of sources within the industry to collect insider information and access key individuals.